Dearest Best Heart: —

Well, honey, Feb. is over with to-day. Now we have to just represent March and April. Do you think, honey, everything will be alright by May, for me to come down? I shall not, of course say anything about resigning until the last week in April, & I do, lost hope I won't have to wait any longer. Tell me just what you think about it.

Rec'd your stingy Wednesday letter to-day. Hope to get a big one to-morrow. Everything is as usual. Expect to see snow to-night and my usual weather, — rain! It has a look of clearing up — but I guess it will be one of those rain and the sun shine days. I certainly do hope that it will remain clear until I get my shop done.

Honey, I certainly do hope the beam will be able to do something for you. Yes to that case, well, lost, I want to expect you to make something big out of it. It is only a matter of time and things are bound to come. Hope you get the 'no' soon, as that will be some sort of encouragement.

Ben L. is not worth talking about so I'll just pass him over. Stick him a piece of your mind if that will ease your any, and then have nothing to do to do with him.

Well, lost, I shall have to close, as it is past my bunch hour. Wrote this early to be sure you would receive a letter as Friday is a very busy day for me. With all my lost hugs & kisses to my precious hubby.

I am Your loving wife
France.
